INSPIRING STORIES

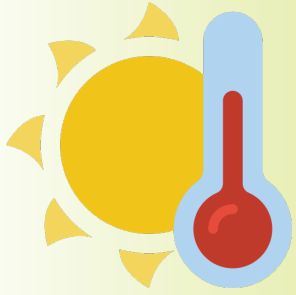

In June, we presented a new phone-in program called Dial-a-Story: Indigenous Storytelling by Squamish Elders, in partnership with the Squamish Elder's Centre. This program sought to reach out to community members who are not able to connect with Library programs online. The sessions were all fully registered and had lengthy waitlists.

One participant said:

"Thank you so much for organizing such a beautiful program in this Indigenous History Month. Storyteller Elder William Nahanee's talk was really an amazing story."

OVERVIEW

On June 7, we reintroduced a limited number of individual study spaces.

During the extreme heat advisory, the Library was the only designated cooling centre in West Vancouver. The day the highest temperatures were recorded (June 28) was our busiest day since Easter, as people took refuge from the heat.

STRATEGIC HIGHLIGHTS

Learning

- Thanks to our partners at the West Vancouver Historical Society, we presented West Vancouver Girl Guides: A Centennial Celebration in our Art Gallery space. This show featured archival photos, vintage uniforms, and guiding memorabilia.

- In May, we hosted local fashion historian Ivan Sayers for a lecture on Fashions of the West Vancouver Pioneers. The program received such an overwhelming response that we ran it a second time and shared a recording of the lecture. As a result, over 400 people were able to enjoy it.

- Our large-scale virtual programs for kids and teens thrived. Almost 400 students from 11 different West Vancouver elementary schools participated in the Reading Link Challenge. We also launched our second fully virtualized Summer Reading Club, with over 1,700 kids and teens registered, compared to 1,000 registrants in 2020.

- In this quarter, our Technology department ran 64 programs for adults, including 41 one-on-one device clinics.

"Thank you for these webinars to expose us to using technology"

Inclusion

- A new partnership with the Squamish Nation Elder's Center has led to promotion of Library services in a flyer that was distributed to all Squamish Nation Elders.
- We added to our collection of lendable technology and started loaning WiFi hotspots and pre-loaded iPods.
- Thanks to our Interlibrary Loan program and access to Persian materials, we loaned several books from our Persian collection to patrons at the Whitehorse Public Library.

Community

- The North Shore libraries held the first-ever virtual edition of the North Shore Writers Festival in April 2021 and it was a huge success, with over 570 attendees tuning into six livestreamed events.
- Sponsored by the WVML Foundation, the popular Readers' Rooftop patio reopened for the summer, now featuring a rooftop garden maintained by the Master Gardeners.

- Our English language learning volunteers won a very well-deserved North Shore Community Resources Community Spirit Award for their work facilitating our English Conversation Online program.
- The Youth Department resumed outreach efforts, including two drive-through events with West Vancouver Schools (WVS), over a dozen virtual Summer Reading Club visits, and WVS' virtual Kindergarten Connections program for 50 families.

Integrity

- We took our librarians' expertise in readers' advisory online with the launch of our new BookMatch service. Patrons can now simply fill out an online form with their reading preferences to receive personalized recommendations.
- We launched our Climate Future: Climate Action Toolkit, outlining achievable individual actions to take in the areas of food, stuff, transportation, buildings, and nature.
- Thanks to funding from the WVML Foundation, we introduced the new Kids Lucky

Day Collection, to make very popular books available for kids and families who come into the Library to browse.

- The three North Shore libraries won the British Columbia Library Association Building Better Communities Award for their Take-Home Tech initiative. Thanks to a grant secured by WVML's Head of Technology Sarah Felkar, the initiative delivered 400 TELUS-donated devices to vulnerable residents last spring.

WVML FOUNDATION

This time last year, the WVML Foundation committed over $400,000 in donations from donors to support the Library's response to COVID-19 and the pivot to virtual service for the rest of the year. These donations supported increased virtual programs, collections, and a variety of other initiatives, including the first-ever WVML Foundation Signature Series of virtual concerts and author talks.

We're in a new year, and the demand for collections (particularly ebooks and downloadable audiobooks), tech support, and virtual programs is still high. Consider donating to the BOOKS + beyond campaign:

Do you know what your donation to the WVML Foundation could do?

	$30	a new book in the Library's collection
	$150	two more Device Clinics offered
	$500	one of our popular monthly Tech Talks
	$1,000	a class set purchase of new technology for kids
	$5,000	a new and exciting virtual event

FRIENDS

We are so thankful for the Friends of the Library, who each year sponsor the North Shore Writers Festival. 2021 was no different, and the virtual edition of the festival was a great success. Attendees joined in from all over BC, with some participants joining from Ontario, Alberta, and even the United States.

"Libraries are a life-saver and how you link up our community is wonderful!"

"Even though it was online, in some ways it felt more personal than watching people up on a stage."

"I really appreciated that the North Shore Writers Festival could be delivered virtually this year. With so many community events cancelled due to COVID I feel that this festival was really enjoyed by people living on the North Shore."
